I Want a Bed That Folds

Looks Well and Does Not Take Up All the Space in the House

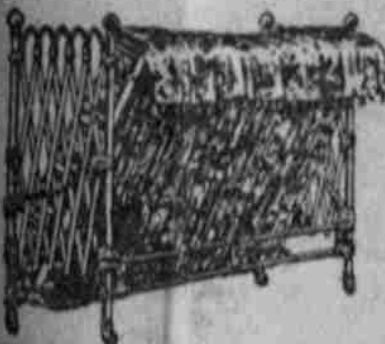

This is the cry that every furniture dealer hears almost every day of his life.

Here It Is

It is the Safety Folding Bed. To take our expression for it just as we would say it to you. "It is the slickest thing yet." It can be folded when made up ready for use.

It is all metal. It has the best kind of a national spring. It is finished in white enamel with gilt trimmings.

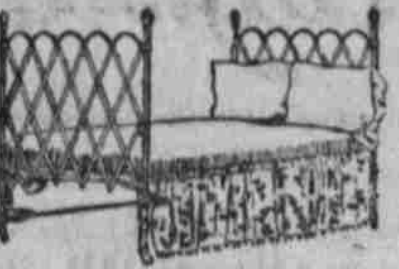

It folds easily. It is neat and makes a tasty addition to the furnishings of any room in the house. It is reasonable in price. What more do you want when you are short up for space?

We also have Children's

Cribs made on the same plan.

We will give a Public Demonstration of this new Safety Folding Bed in our show window

Wednesday Evening when our store is open.

Daniel Sully in "The Golden Rule" is without doubt one of the best character actors of the American stage. He has a praiseworthy ambition to elevate the Irish character of the drama, and presents the son of Erin as we know him in life, and as we see him in the comic papers. Across the footlights comes only a delightful tinge of brogue, carrying in its sweetness the outpourings of an Irish heart and the pulse-throbs of true Irish nature. He is heroic without bravado, he is honest without saintism, and the pure and artistic air of naturalism permeates his beautiful play. The discerning public, which has burnt incense at the shrine of "O'Donoghue's Neighbors," "Flanagan's Goat," "Grogan's Alley," and that sort of things should open its arms and welcome a man brave enough to present an Irish character, which is not a caricature. At the Barre opera house, Monday evening, Dec. 2.
